A Little Truce
N'gi Feels Better
Where Was Its Soul?
More Cattle for Russia

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

LAST NIGHT the League of Nations learned that Japan and China had agreed on a "conditional truce," a temporary agreement to withdraw troops from firing lines while the head men talk it over.

The late Jerry Dunne, whom every "bad man" in New York feared, used to say: "When two men fight they both want to run away. If you don't want to run you will win."

In this Asiatic fight both have seemed inclined to run, almost from the start. When China declined to lie down and be stepped on in good old "David and Goliath" style, Japan felt China wasn't playing the game.

Also Japan learns that Russia is massing 100,000 troops on the Manchurian border, and is intelligent enough to know that if she fought Russia now she would meet a different Russia from the one he met 28 years ago under the Czar. If the Japanese thought they had to meet modern Russia they would prefer to get the Chinese problem off their minds first.

NGI, the Washington, D. C. gorilla suffering from pneumonia, was better yesterday, thanks to an "oxygen chamber" provided for his use by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, editor of the Washington Herald. He ate three bananas, a pear, part of an apple, half of a grape fruit—almost a normal breakfast.

Young N'gi, although six years old, is still a baby. Gorillas, like ourselves, mature slowly. His "oxygen chamber" was a simple affair of canvas for temporary use.

His apparent recovery from pneumonia has done good by

TWO ROBBERS ARE GENEROUS WITH VICTIM

Armed Men Refuse To Take Money from Gas Station Attendant.

THEY RETURN $4 TO HIM

Loot Till, Then Make Escape from Holdup at Main and George Streets.

An unlooked for display of generosity on the part of two robbers last night saved a filling station attendant from the loss of his own money while the men looted the station cash drawer.

The holdup occurred at the Standard Oil Co. station at north Main and George streets. It was the second here within less than 48 hours.

T. E. Edwards of 120½ Chicago avenue, the attendant was washing windows about 11 p. m. yesterday when two men entered. One covered Edwards with an automatic pistol. The other man was not armed.

Asks for Money

The man with the gun asked Edwards if he had the money in his pocket or if it was in the cash drawer. When told the money was in the drawer the men attempted to open it. Failing, they ordered Edwards to do so, he told police. They took the contents amounting to $16.80. "We need this worse than the company," one of the men remarked as they emptied the till.

The man with the gun then asked the attendant if he had any money in his pocket. Edwards handed him $4.

"Is this your money or the company's," the robber asked.

MODERN DEVICE ENTERS COURT AS AID IN TRIAL

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., March 1—When Roy E. Bowers, Wyandot county farmer, went on trial in common pleas court here last week charged with the first degree murder of his wife, his attorneys faced what appeared to be an insurmountable handicap. Bowers was deaf.

This physical handicap made it impossible for him to guide his attorneys while the state was presenting its case and threatened to hinder intelligent questioning when Bowers went on the stand in his own defense.

Although the device was more or less of a makeshift in nature, it functioned perfectly throughout the trial, which came to an end Saturday when a jury convicted Bowers of the charge but recommended mercy. Bowers will be taken before the trial judge Saturday for sentencing.

ATTORNEY BLACKFORD used a microphone and headphone operated by dry batteries to make the instrument possible. The microphone was mounted on a reading lamp stand and took on the ap-

Japanese Government Accepts Proposals To End Strife.

Permanent Solution of Problem To Be Sought.

Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press

TOKYO, March 1—Peace proposals to end the conflict at Shanghai made by Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate at the League of Nations council at Geneva, Switzerland were accepted by the Japanese government today.

The proposals of M. Boncour, which called for a conference of the powers at Shanghai, with representatives of China and Japan, were also accepted by Admiral Osumi and General Araki, heads of the war and navy departments at a conference with Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa.

They were reported to Tokyo by Nantaket Sato, Japanese representative at the league council, by cablegram. The government was understood to have interpreted M. Paul-Boncour's suggestions as meaning that a conference at Shanghai covering a long period of time would be likely and that the conference would seek a permanent solution of the problem there.

It was understood that instructions would be sent to M. Sato advising him to accept the Boncour

SHANGHAI, March 1—Japanese officials claimed late this afternoon the entire Chinese line, from Chapei northward through the western environs of Klangwan, to Miaochangchen, was driven back, in the most terrific battle the Shanghai front has seen.

Backed up by 15,000 reinforcements who landed here during the last 36 hours, the Japanese early this morning began a tremendous assault along the entire front.

Terrific explosions which shook the entire city without being clearly heard, occurred when two mines blew up about 9 o'clock by two Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river. Inhabitants of the International settlement rushed into the streets, screaming that an earthquake, something which happens in Shanghai but once in a decade, had struck.

Onslaught Is Terrific

The Japanese lines struck with a fury unknown heretofore in the conflict; their tanks dashing backward and forward like maddened monsters. They said they had achieved an advance of more than

Makes You Lose Unhealthy Fat

Mrs. Ethel Smith of Norwich, Conn., writes: "I lost 16 lbs. with my first bottle of Kruschen. Being on night duty it was hard to sleep days but now since I am taking Kruschen I sleep plenty, eat as usual and lose fat, too."

To take off fat—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents—get it at Henney & Cooper's or any drugstore in America. If this bottle fails to convince you this is the SAFE and harmless way to lose fat—your money gladly returned.

MAGAZINE CARRIES ARTICLE ON SCHOOL

Plan Originated by Marion Teacher Subject of Story.

Miss Grace Baldwin of 296 east Walnut street, principal of Oakland Heights school, is given recognition for her achievement day plan in an issue of the Thrift Almanack, published by Thrift, Inc., of Chicago, school savings headquarters.

The article is headed "Achievement Day at Marion, Ohio," and carries a picture of Miss Baldwin.

Miss Baldwin originated the plan in which ribbons are awarded her scholars who excel in various branches of school activities. Near the close of the school year, a parade is held in the neighborhood, in which those winning the ribbons march.

Blue ribbons are awarded for honor work in studies. Rose ribbons are presented for "not absent;" yellow ribbons for thrift and school banking and white for no tardinesses.

Children receiving all four badges lead the parade, those having three come next and so on. Appropriate exercises are held on "achievement day" when the ribbons are awarded.

Miss Baldwin has found, according to the article, that the children strive now to earn the badges with appreciable improvement in lessons and banking, and with decrease in tardiness and absences.

Growing seasons of 90 days are found in 90 per cent of the United States.

COXEY BACKING HIS PET IDEA

Will Base Campaign for Presidency on "Money at Cost" Issue.

By International News Service

MASSILLON, O., March 1 — "Money at cost"—that 38-year-old dream of "General" Jacob S Coxey, native of Massillon, has been injected into the 1932 presidential campaign as a campaign issue.

Coxey has made his major platform plank the issue for financial relief which he has fought since Mayor Coxey has announced himself a candidate for President on the Republican ticket. His candidacy has been entered in the South Dakota preferential primaries and will be entered in others.

Primarily, he is making the seemingly "ill-doomed to failure" campaign for the publicity it will bring his plan of legalizing the issuance of non-interest bearing bonds in small denominations to be used as legal tender.

Coxey is an idealist and a tenacious fighter. It was 38 years ago New Year's day that he dreamed his "money at cost" plan while riding in a Pullman compartment. His sole ambition since that time has been to see his dreams realized.

Entered Spotlight at 39

The "general" was 39 when he first sought recognition of his money plan by leading a raggedy army of jobless to the nation's capital. It failed when he was refused permission to speak and was jailed 20 days for trespassing on the grass at the capitol.

Doggedly, Coxey has carried on his campaign for his plan ever since. He interested financial experts but was unable to obtain recognition of his legislation in congress. Repeatedly he ran for congress so that he could insist that his scheme be given a hearing.

Defeat for 38 years has served only to spur Coxey on. Resigned to the fact that he could not get into congress, he ran for mayor of Massillon, promising to place his money idea into operation on a small scale in the city and prove its worth.

The campaign he made for mayor was the most colorful in his career. He used a horse-drawn carriage once owned by McKinley and Blaine. A colored servant drove it and Coxey dressed in the style of an age gone by.

His First Victory

His flowery oratory and his promises of a solution to the city's financial difficulties captured the fancy of the residents and he was swept into the first elective victory of his career.

Coxey plans to contest for delegates to the G. O. P. convention in every state with a preferential primary.

His campaign will be almost entirely based upon his bond issue scheme. How extensive the campaign will be is indefinite but Coxey promises it will be thorough and nationwide in scope.

Coxey goes into this greatest race of his life at the age of 77 years. He doesn't look that old, however, and his mind is as clear as the day he first visioned the plan to which he had dedicated his life.

He is an impressive public speaker all the more so because of his swallow-tailed coat and wing collar. He pleads majestically with his audience and makes excellent use of gestures.

Meeting the Test

Life Insurance, the great stabilizer of human welfare, carries on

PEACE OF MIND, with which to face the present and plan for the future, never has meant more than it means today. These are trying times. It is difficult to believe that anyone has escaped the effects of a world-wide deflation of values, contraction of enterprise, social change.

That life insurance companies, during the past year, have been able to show an increase of insurance in force is indeed a tribute to the high purpose which these institutions serve. It indicates a growing national consciousness of this reliable form of financial protection.

Life insurance is, in a real sense, an investment in peace of mind, with interest payable in future comfort. It paves the way to education; to replacement of earning power cut off by death; to establishment of credit; to liquidation of indebtedness; to estate creation—to these and other family or business objectives.

Chairmen for the Ohio Tax Protective League, a statewide organization combining the activities of 20 county tax reduction groups, are to be named this week by G. H. Haskins of Coshocton, who was chosen president at an organization meeting in Columbus last week.

Maroin county probably will be represented in the committees, since a number of men representing the Marion County Taxpayers association have been active in the organization of the state group. A program will be outlined at a meeting in Hotel Southern in Columbus March 24, Jones said. In the meantime, the executive committee of the league will prepare a tentative program to be submitted to the members. The program will center around the league's efforts to effect reductions of taxes and eliminate unnecessary public offices.

MAGAZINE CARRIES ARTICLE ON SCHOOL

Plan Originated by Marion Teacher Subject of Story.

Miss Grace Baldwin of 296 east Walnut street, principal of Oakland Heights school, is given recognition for her achievement day plan in an issue of the Thrift Almanack, published by Thrift, Inc., of Chicago, school savings headquarters.

Miss Baldwin originated the plan in which ribbons are awarded her scholars who excel in various branches of school activities. Near the close of the school year, a parade is held in the neighborhood, in which those winning the ribbons march.

Blue ribbons are awarded for honor work in studies. Rose ribbons are presented for "not absent;" yellow ribbons for thrift and school banking and white for no tardinesses.

Children receiving all four badges lead the parade, those having three come next and so on. Appropriate exercises are held on "achievement day" when the ribbons are awarded.

Miss Baldwin has found, according to the article, that the children strive now to earn the badges with appreciable improvement in lessons and banking, and with decrease in tardiness and absences.

Growing seasons of 90 days are found in 90 per cent of the United States.

COXEY BACKING HIS PET IDEA

Will Base Campaign for Presidency on "Money at Cost" Issue.

By International News Service

MASSILLON, O., March 1 — [illegible] that 38-year-old "Money at Cost General" Jacob S. Coxey, [illegible] of Massillon, has been in the race for the 1932 presidential [illegible] campaign issue.

[illegible] major platform [illegible] for financial re- [illegible] he has fought since [illegible] Mayor Coxey has an- [illegible] himself a candidate for President on the Republican ticket. His candidacy has been entered in the South Dakota preferential primaries and will be entered in others.

Primarily, he is making the seemingly "predoomed to failure" campaign for the publicity it will bring his plan of legalizing the issuance of non-interest bearing bonds in small denominations to be used as legal tender.

Coxey is an idealist and a tenacious fighter. It was 38 years ago New Year's day that he dreamed his "money at cost" plan while riding in a Pullman compartment. His sole ambition since that time has been to see his dream realized.

Entered Spotlight at 39

The "general" was 39 when he first sought recognition of his money plan by leading a raggedy army of jobless to the nation's capital. It failed when he was refused permission to speak and was jailed 20 days for trespassing on the grass at the capitol.

Doggedly, Coxey has carried on his campaign for his plan ever since. He interested financial experts but was unable to obtain recognition of his legislation in congress. Repeatedly he ran for congress so that he could insist that his scheme be given a hearing.

Defeat for 38 years has served only to spur Coxey on. Resigned to the fact that he could not get into congress, he ran for mayor of Massillon, promising to place his money idea into operation on a small scale in the city and prove its worth.

The campaign he made for mayor was the most colorful in his career. He used a horse-drawn carriage once owned by McKinley and Blaine. A colored servant drove it and Coxey dressed in the style of an age gone by.

His First Victory

His flowery oratory and his promises of a solution to the city's financial difficulties captured the fancy of the residents and he was swept into the first elective victory of his career.

Coxey plans to contest for delegates to the G. O. P. convention in every state with a preferential primary.

His campaign will be almost entirely based upon his bond issue scheme. How extensive the campaign will be is indefinite but Coxey promises it will be thorough and nationwide in scope.

Coxey goes into this greatest race of his life at the age of 77 years. He doesn't look that old, however, and his mind is as clear as the day he first visioned the plan to which he had dedicated his life.

He is an impressive public speaker all the more so because of his swallow-tailed coat and wing collar. He pleads majestically with his audience and makes excellent use of gestures.

Meeting the Test

PEACE OF MIND, with which to face the present and plan for the future, never has meant more than it means today. These are trying times. It is difficult to believe that anyone has escaped the effects of a world-wide deflation of values, contraction of enterprise, social change.

That life insurance companies, during the past year, have been able to show an increase of insurance in force is indeed a tribute to the high purpose which these institutions serve. It indicates a growing national consciousness of this reliable form of financial protection.

Life insurance is, in a real sense, an investment in peace of mind, with interest payable in future comfort. It paves the way to education; to replacement of earning power cut off by death; to establishment of credit; to liquidation of indebtedness; to estate creation—to these and other family or business objectives.

RUNS

Why blame stockings when YOU may be at fault?

Are you washing away the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear?

"ANOTHER PAIR GONE!"—but don't blame the stockings. Do you know YOU may have caused those costly runs?

New stockings give under strain—stretch and spring right back again—because they are elastic.

But if you wash away the elasticity, the lifeless threads, instead of giving, break. The slightest little strain—then a wretched run!

With Lux, you preserve this precious elasticity. That is why this easy way of washing makes even your sheerest, loveliest stockings wear and WEAR.

The Lux Way to save the ELASTICITY that makes stockings wear and fit

Wash this 2-minute way:

1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity. With Lux there is no rubbing.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens silk threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Don't use too-warm water—it fades color. With Lux you use lukewarm water. No hot water needed.

Broadway Man Honored by Rainbow Vets Here

Jack Henry of Marysville, president of the state association, was the principal speaker at the organization meeting of Dyer J. Bird Chapter, Rainbow Veterans' association, at the armor, last night. The chapter was organized with 19 members and an application for a charter was made today.

William Laughlin, elected president of the chapter at a meeting two weeks ago, was unable to be present and David Knickle, vice president, presided at the meeting. He made a brief talk. The first Friday night of each month was fixed as the regular meeting night.

Members of the Rainbow division from Mt. Gilead, Galion, Marysville and Cardington, were at the meeting. Lunch was served.

The meeting last night recalled the death of Dyer J. Bird of Broadway after whom the chapter is named. Bird was the first soldier of Co. D, 166th infantry, a Marion outfit, to die in battle. He was killed 14 years ago today.

Private Bird was killed in a listening post by a German raiding party and his last words warned his comrades of the advance of the enemy's attack.

R. M. Cheseldine, a former captain in the 166th infantry, in his book, "Ohio In the Rainbow," says of Bird's death "On the night of March 1-2 the first battalion was relieved by the third and that same night the first man of our regiment and of the Rainbow division to make the supreme sacrifice for the cause of freedom, 'went west.'" Private Dyer J. Bird, Co. D. of Broadway, O., was killed by a rifle of machine gun bullet as he was coming out of the trenches.

"The funeral for Private Bird was held a few days later in Domjevin in the open space before the regimental headquarters. Major General Charles T. Menoher, commanding the 42nd division, with Colonel Douglas MacArthur, chief-of-staff and members of the general staff, together with high officers of the French army attended the services and marched with the body of mourners to the little cemetery on the hill back of the village, where the casket, flag covered, was lowered into its grave. Heads were uncovered as Chaplain Halliday spoke the final words of prayer and all saluted as the soft tones of "taps" paid the last measure of military devotion to one who had kept his "rendezvous with death."

SMASHING ATTACK HITS CHINESE LINE

an armed launch proceeded a short distance down river and arrested six Chinese in two sampans, accusing them of being connected with the explosion.

Area Extension Likely

As a result of these developments it seemed likely the Japanese battlefront would be extended to include the surface and the depths of the Whangpoo which yesterday was declared international water, following a request of the powers that the flagship Idzumo be removed from there.

The mines were "time" blasts, according to naval officials. They were not close enough to do damage, officials said.

They were so powerful that when they exploded they threw a stream of water 150 feet into the air. The first blast occurred within 20 yards of the flagship Idzumo.

The blast rocked the ship. A few minutes later a simular blast burst up within 50 yards of the cruiser Oi, 500 yards further down the river.

Near U. S. Flagship

This second blast shot up only a short distance from the American flagship Houston, anchored in the middle of the river.

The British flagship Kent also lay on the opposite from the Japanese cruiser Oi, while the Italian flagship Limina was anchored a short distance below the Kent. None of these foreign vessels was damaged.

The ferocity of the battle along the Chapei-Kiangwan-Miao-Chiangchen front during the afternoon made it increasingly apparent that the Japanese were undertaking to achieve a smashing advance along the whole battle line.

FASCIST UPRISING AFFECTS FINANCES

By The Associated Press

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 1—Withdrawals from banks and considerable difficulty in securing foreign currency were among the most notable results today of the Fascist revolt which led to an encounter with government troops 25 miles from Helsingfors yesterday.

Maneuvers by the government to round up the Fascist leaders failed before dawn today, however, when the latter slipped out of the net which had been laid for them.

The Fascist bands, congregating threateningly in the vicinity of the capital, served a demand on President Pehr Erwin Svinhufvud to oust Communists and Socialist members from the cabinet or suffer the consequences of civil war. The president replied by decreeing new military powers to meet the rebellion.

ENDS YEAR'S FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

Miss Denny Has 150 Families Under Observation.

Miss Alma Denney, city and county tuberculosis nurse, today rounded out her first year of work in Marion county. Her activities are financed through the sale of Christmas health seals.

Miss Denney now has 150 families under observation, there being chronic cases, suspected cases and contacts among these.

At least 40 persons have been given sanatorium treatment for the diseases during the last year under Miss Denney's supervision. There are now 10 persons receiving this treatment.

As a part of tuberculosis prevention work, which Miss Denney asserts is probably the most important phase of her activity, is the care given approximately 15 undernourished children whose health was built up by special attention given by the nurse.

DEMOCRATS ASSIGN CAMPAIGN QUOTAS

Marion County Committee Assessed $500 for State "Victory Fund."

A quota of $500 in the Democratic "victory fund" has been assigned to Marion county by Robert S. Hayes, chairman of the statewide fund campaign. Money raised in the fund campaign will be used to defray expenses of the national Democratic campaign, including the congressional campaigns, local Democrats say.

T. B. Mateer of Mt. Gilead has been named chairman for the Eighth congressional district to assist the counties in raising their share of the state quota.

FIREMEN SAVE CAT, SCARED BY DOG

Members of the aerial ladder crew at the central fire station rescued a cat from the top of a tree in the back yard at the C. E. Henney home at 554 Delaware avenue this morning. The cat, neighbors said, had been chased up the tree by a dog and for two days and two nights had refused to come down. It offered no resistance, however, when Bob Swisher, driver of the truck, mounted a 20-foot ladder and removed the animal from its perch in the top of the tree.

health, teamwork and dependability, he said.

Citizenship education in the school should teach children to live together, he asserted.

In special citizenship classes, he continued, the aim is to acquaint the student with the agencies of citizenship, such as their public offices, and to train them to see the opportunity to help. A respect for others is cultivated, and mutual accommodation and helpfulness is developed.

Mrs. Harder Speaks

Mrs. W. N. Harder, a former president of the Ohio State Federation of Women's clubs, spoke on "The Citizenship of Women."

Women's activities toward international peace are an illustration of what women may be expected to contribute as citizens, she said.

Many expect women, given the right to vote, to play an impartment part in the development and preservation of our comparatively new civilization, she said. Women know what to do, but the question is "will they do it?" she said.

The answer to this question, she declared, lies in the question, "Will women be given the opportunity to make the contribution which they are willing and able to make?" Thus far, women have had comparatively little opportunity to contribute much in the way of citizenship, and have had little experience, she explained.

"The Citizenship of George Washington" was the word picture drawn by George A. Bowman, superintendent of the city schools in his discussion of that topic. Washington, an intensely human man, broke from the lines of least resistance followed by most men of his wealth to devote 40 years of his life to public service, the superintendent pointed out.

Washington throughout his life was where the people needed him Mr. Bowman said. He gave up the comforts of his private life to serve first in the Virginia house of burgesses, again to become a military leader, and still again to become president of the nation.

Mr. Bowman read from Washington's message to the people at the close of his second term as president, pointing to his love for his country and his loyalty. We of today might well rededicate ourselves to the principles and qualities which prompted Washington to make these sacrifices, in the face of criticism, jealousy and treason, for the country he loved, Mr. Bowman asserted.

Court Official Speaks

Still another phase of citizenship was discussed by Everett B. Grigsby, clerk of courts, who talked on "Citizenship—How It Is Obtained."

"I wonder," he said, "if we who are native born appreciate our citizenship as much as the foreigner who must earn his. We should value our citizenship as a precious gem, and fully appreciate its value."

He discussed in detail the various legal steps incident to naturalization proceedings. Naturalization is administered by the department of labor. An alien must have a certificate of his legal arrival into this country before he can file a declaration of intention to become a citizen. When this is filed, he must renounce allegiance to any foreign power, wait two years, and then file a petition for citizenship on which a hearing before a court is held. The final decision on citizenship rests with the court after a recommendation has been made by a naturalization examiner.

One hundred and seventy attended last night's meeting. Among business taken up before the talks was a committee report by John Probst, vice chairman of the welfare committee, that the committee, if it is given the cooperation of every one, will have the welfare activities cooperating as one unit in the near future.

Clyde C. Caldwell, representing the American Legion, discussed briefly the plan of the chamber of commerce, the Legion and other organizations to sponsor a city-wide employment campaign beginning March 15.

ROBERT P. LAMONT JR., son of our secretary of commerce, has been invited to go to Russia and show the soviet government how to reorganize and improve production of cattle. Young Mr. Lamont will visit Moscow to look the job over, much interested, not in the $50,000 salary said to be offered, but in the problem.

Russia, with 160,000,000 population, has 33,000,000 beef cattle, 17,000,000 sheep. This country has 65,000,000 beef cattle, 60,000,000 sheep.

Russia wisely wants her people to eat 100 pounds of meat each a year, which is the American ration.

Young Mr. Lamont raises white-faced Herefords on a 15,000-acre cattle ranch in Colorado and thinks the Russian job could be done in about 20 years.

MARION MEN SHOW IMPROVEMENT TODAY

Sutton and Rawlings Recovering from Injuries in Hospital.

Ray Sutton and Ralph Rawlings, Marion men injured Sunday morning near Massillon, are showing marked improvement, members of the families said today. The slight concussion of the brain suffered by Rawlings has begun to clear up, and an injured hip is responding rapidly to treatment. Sutton's only severe injury was a long cut across his head.

John Lightner, partner of Sutton's in the firm of Sutton and Lightner, will go to Massillon Wednesday and if the improvement continues, probably will arrange to bring them to Marion.

The men were hurt when their automobile skidded into a pole in Massillon. They were enroute to New York on a spring buying trip.

Members of the Sutton family said today that Rawlings' tie became twisted around his neck when the car hit the pole and that if help had not been near, he would have choked to death. A witness to the accident cut the tie when he found Rawlings gasping for breath. Rawlings was sitting on the side that struck the pole.

TAX COLLECTION AT HALF MILLION MARK

The December tax collection mounted to $519,407.97 when yesterday's collection of $8,145.10 had been added to the total, it was announced today in the office of County Treasurer R. G. Smallwood. This includes realty tax and a part of the personal property tax. The personal tax on intangible property is not included in this figure.

Auditor Earl E. Thomas today said that 513 persons have listed their personal property for taxation since Feb. 15. A majority of taxpayers are required to pay approximately one-third of the amount of personal property tax assessed them in previous years, officials say.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Returns on Income Taxes Slow.

The bureau of internal revenue is appealing to the public not to wait until March 15 to prepare and mail income tax returns, but to facilitate the work of the bureau by getting them into the hands of collectors of internal revenue with as little delay as possible. Not only this, but there is also expression of the hope of the bureau that those making returns will go over and verify their figures, which may, and probably will, result in the saving of a great aggregation of work to the personnel of the bureau.

These requests are prompted by the understanding of the internal revenue people that there has been, and still is, much uncertainty in the public mind regarding rates and exemptions, whether or not any new rates or exemptions will be retroactive. This uncertainty still persists despite the fact that announcement has been repeatedly made that the old rates will prevail for the incomes of 1931, and the further fact that no legislation has been enacted which alters the rates and exemptions under which returns were filed last year.

The consequence is that the returns thus far filed have been few compared with the great volume which formerly have been filed by March 1, and even should the utmost diligence be exercised by taxpayers in making returns from this time on, it is probable that the bureau will be buried under an avalanche of executed forms, when the deadline arrives for making returns, March 15, without an attendant penalty for delay.

To reduce the size of this probable flood of returns as much as possible during the next two weeks is the motive behind the bureau's appeal.

A Chilly Reception.

Suggestion of economic boycott against Japan by Newton D. Baker and a group of university professors got a half-hearted hearing that left no doubt of the public attitude on that means of settling the rumpus in the Orient. As usual, academic ideas were revealed as standing a thousand miles away from possible action.

Boycott would be justified and even practical if concerted action were assured. As the situation stands, however, it is the United States that has taken the lead in moral guardianship. It has been trying to pull the chestnuts out of the fire while other interested parties sat on their hands watching.

There is no reason to hope for international cooperation of the kind that would make a Japanese boycott effective. By supporting the suggestion, the United States would have been placed in the somewhat ridiculous position of assuming an unappreciated pose. The British and the French, meanwhile, would be in the clear.

Boycott might prove a vicious boomerang. Japan would be seriously inconvenienced, but so would the United States. The game would not be worth the candle to business. As for saving the world, there seems to have been enough of that in the World war to last a long time.

Public opinion on the Chinese-Japanese affairs is entering a new phase of development. First, came the jingo stage in which every one worried about the possibility of war. That passed and was followed by a period of concern over the power of the League of Nations to take some kind of definite action. When the league had demonstrated its inability to act and Japan had started its campaign in Shanghai there was another period of worry over the possibility that the United States would be dragged in by some accident or arrangement of circumstances.

More recently, public opinion has begun to sense the lack of cooperation from abroad. It is generally believed that Japan is the aggressor and should be forced back into line, but the folly of trying to do it single-handed is becoming more evident. Secretary of State Stimson has fairly outdone himself writing notes which the public has read faithfully and tried to understand. Now there is a desire to see reports of action from other interested nations. The war as a story continues; as a matter for the United States to settle in its self-appointed capacity as international monitor it is beginning to suffer from lack of interest.

The suggestion has been made to the house coinage committee that silver coins be made square, instead of round, to keep them from slipping away. Huh! They would get away from us were they minted in the form of triangles!

The French senate seemingly doesn't look upon woman suffrage with the high enthusiasm displayed by the chamber of deputies. Possibly the chamber figured on this when passing the bill, debate on which has been deferred by the senate till March 15.

Unpopular Bears.

Announcement that the predatory activities of Wall Street's big bears are to be revealed to the country, along with the names of the bears themselves, is almost as exciting as a promise to be permitted to browse around behing the scenes in a musical revue.

The bears are in great unpopularity with the administration, which has been striving to inject the stock market with enough confidence to keep it from fainting whenever they appeared. The purpose of the revelation is stated briefly by Connecticut's Senator Walcott. "We are going to let the country know just who are these big professional raiders who have been deliberately taking the bloom off of every constructive enterprise for the past year."

Wall Street is excited, and for a good reason. Unfavorable publicity is one of its pet bugaboos. In any altercation with the administration, it is pretty sure to come away the loser. The bears, themselves, may believe in what they are doing; they may put the blame on the bulls. But the administration is going to go into the matter with its mind made up. They will be licked before they start, in all probability.

While a decision is being reached, it might be well to take the advisability of changing the names of the two schools of market operation. Bull, for instance, is a misnomer in the present situation, because it carries no implication of constructive action. Bear is just as bad, because nature lovers have been assured by countless lecturers that a bear won't hurt anything if let alone. The administration, apparently, looks at it the other way.

There can be no reasonable criticism of the demand of James A. Reed, former senator from Missouri, that Democracy adopt an "America First" platform for this year, but it will hardly do to anticipate, in the event of the adoption of such a platform, that it will be marked by any great outburst of patriotism, unless more generously adhered to than the average party platform, after the election becomes a thing of the past.

President Hoover and members of congress, a headline over a Washington dispatch tells us, oppose a boycott on Japan, feeling that it would lead to war. Well, that comes pretty near making clear that Mr. Hoover and the federal legislators so expressing themselves are not pacificists, internationalists or addle-pated professors, the three classes largely behind the boycott idea.

Down in Maryland, a court has declared unconstitutional that state's law which permits grocers to attach ten per cent. of a wage-earner's pay for an unpaid food bill on the ground that it is class legislation, as the right given by the law to grocers is denied to other tradespeople. The garnishee idea does not appear to have the widespread application in Maryland that it has in some states, Ohio among them.

SLOWING UP THE TRACK.

Editorial Opinion.

FOR FULL NAVAL STRENGTH.

Contention over plans for the navy seems to be in a fair way of settlement. In the house is the Vinson measure for new construction calling for a total expenditure of $616,000,000, with the cost spread out. The senate committee on naval affairs has agreed with Senator Hale that a program bringing our naval strength up to the limitations fixed by the London naval treaty is desirable. Estimates run as high as $988,000,000, inclusive of the Vinson figures. They embrace replacements as well as new construction.

But there is no intention of spending this money at once. Indeed, no provision is made in the senate bill for appropriations. What is sought is the adoption of the complete program the authorization of it. In short, we place ourselves in the position of acceptance of the London agreement, reserving to ourselves the time for carrying it out. The senate committee talks of a ten-year plan.

Obviously congress can not plunge into feverish building activities now. In every department efforts are making to reduce expenses. The huge deficit must be met with increased taxation. To add measurably to that deficit would mean adding measurably to taxes. So we must advance slowly. The main point is that we record our right to naval equality with Great Britain, a right to be exercised at our own convenience.

Advocates for the authorization program argue that it should better our position at Geneva; that, as Senator Hale says, "it will show that we do not simply talk, and that if other countries plan to build up to treaty strength we shall do the same. Without this authorization we will be in a very pitiful position." And, according to Senator Watson, "it will give our men some chips with which to sit in the game."

Opponents insist that the effect on the disarmament conference will be harmful. Perhaps. But the outlook for immediate achievement at Geneva is not brilliant, and in any event our navy must not be permitted to deteriorate. However, Geneva has no cause to be disturbed, for our authorization for a complete fleet will be largely on paper.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE GROWING UNITY OF CHINA.

One of the incidental, but very important results of the Japanese aggression in Shanghai is the impetus it has given to the integration of the Chinese people. Never since the revolution of 1910 have the 400,000,000 people of China known any real national unity. Under the empire, China was a vague group of territories, almost completely autonomous in themselves. Nothing resembling the spirit of nationalism then existed.

Through the years of internal confusion since then, leaders have arisen in China, seeking to create a spirit of unity. But only through the tenuous claim of the Kuomintang, China's one political party, was there any pretense of national unity. Most of the time since 1910 Manchuria has ruled itself, Canton has been in revolt against Peiping or Nanking, and the distant provinces on the periphery of China such as Tibet, Sinkiang and Outer Mongolia, have paid lip service at most to the unity of the new republic.

Thus the reactionary spirit of the war lords, the infiltration of Communism, and the factional strife of Canton against the Yangtse valley, all have prevented unification, abetted by constant hardship through flood or famine and wide-spread illiteracy, the grim heritage of the empire.

But what internal leadership has failed to do, foreign aggression is achieving, and in a remarkable fashion. General Tsai Ting-Kai's Cantonese veterans of the Nineteenth Route army are fighting side by side with Chiang Kai-Shek's troops from the North. Money is being poured into the coffers of the defending armies by Canton, Nanking, the Yangtse tri-cities, and by Chinese abroad. Tongs in New York and San Francisco have extended their always dubious truce while they have a common enemy.

Factionalism remains, but the spirit of a nation invaded is rapidly surmounting the obstacles of traditional decentralization. The Sino-Japanese conflict appears likely to endure for some months. When it ends, China may be more of a nation than ever before.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Health and Scalp Care.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

To have healthy hair two things are essential. The first of these is good physical health, and the second is proper care of the hair and scalp.

The hair receives its nourishment through the blood stream, not directly, but through the oil glands. When illness has depleted the quality of the blood, the hair is partially deprived of its regular food for growth. Then there are dullness of color and lack of vitality, and falling of the hair follows.

Disorders of the intestine, especially chronic constipation, are most harmful to the health of the hair. The poisons generated have evil effects everywhere in the body.

In care of the hair the first requirement is cleanliness. Dust, dirt and tiny scales from the skin gather quickly on the scalp and clog the openings of the oil glands. Frequent shampoos should be given, at least one in ten days or two weeks, according to the condition of the hair.

The best method of shampooing is to use a lather of a good quality of soap. This is much better than rubbing soap on the hair. Before applying the cleansing material, thoroughly wet the hair with plain warm water, then rub in the lather, holding the fingers in a claw-like position, moving them around on the scalp, thus combining a massage with the shampoo. After the hair and scalp are cleaned, wash well with plenty of clear warm water. Be sure to do this thoroughly, because it is harmful to permit soap to remain on the hair and scalp.

The best way to dry the hair is by means of air and sunshine. By using this method, the action of the sun will stimulate the circulation of blood through the scalp. Too long exposure to the direct rays of the sun is not advisable, as the color of the hair may be faded by too strong sunlight.

This method of drying is generally possible only in the country, but rubbing with hot towel, or the hands gives an excellent lustre to the hair. I am told that most beauty parlors employ dryers, either electric or gas. There is no objection to this method of drying if the heat is not too great, but intense heat gives the hair a lifeless look.

Too much oil in the hair is due to overactivity of the oil glands. The state of the general health is usually responsible for this trouble. Oily hair is likely to fall out, and on this account special care must be used to keep the scalp clean by frequent washing. Have an examination by a physician and treat the cause of the trouble. That is the sensible course to follow.

Dandruff is the name given to the powdery scales that are shed by the skin of the scalp. Sometimes they appear in an amount that gives the sufferer an untidy, unkempt appearance. Here, too, the general health may be at fault.

The local treatment for this trouble is scalp massage, using some simple oil or white vaseline. Put a small quantity of oil on the tips of the fingers each day and go thoroughly over the scalp with a circular motion. The stimulation of this simple procedure will increase the circulation of the blood through the scalp and encourage the growth of the hair.

The daily care of the hair is simple. It should be the practice to brush it regularly each night. After the brushing the scalp should be massaged as described. Shampoo regularly, once in ten days or two weeks. Avoid constipation, because falling hair and premature grayness often are due to auto-intoxication.

A Tragedy of Immigration into Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

The biography of Thomas Bell, who came as a boy with his parents, immigrating to Ohio from Pennsylvania, in the spring of 18[illegible] contains a pathetic story of a tragedy which could probably be duplicated in the experiences of many others who endure the hardships of travel into the wilds of the Ohio of that early period.

There was four in the party—father, mother and two young boys. They traveled horseback, and had three horses. The father rode one horse, the mother another, each having a boy up behind, while their goods were carried on the back of the third horse.

On the 3d day of April they passed through the town of Lancaster about noon, and a few hours later Mrs. Bell noticed her husband swaying over far to one side of his horse as if looking down at the animal's feet. A moment later, he toppled from the saddle, his foot catching in the stirrup he was dragged a little distance, but the horse stopped at command. Mrs. Bell dismounting hurried to his assistance but with a few gasps he died.

There she was on a trail in a wild country left alone with two small boys. After a brief prayer for divine assistance, she sent the boys back along the trail for help. They found two men rebuilding a fence some distance from Lancaster, who, when told of the tragedy, drove their team with the sled they were using, to the place where the boys' father died and placing his body on the sled, took it with the widow and children to their home, where the body was buried, and Mrs. Bell with the two little boys started again toward their destination—the home of William Read, who was her brother and lived on Alum creek, northeast of Franklintown.

With the assistance of relatives and friends, she was soon able to establish herself in their new home. The son Thomas, married a sister of Philo Olmstead, who was a prominent character in the early history of Columbus.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, March 1—To old-timers the wit and caprices of Broadway today are shallow vaporings in comparison to the red-corpuscled mirth of other years—the years of the "flying wedge" of waiters at Jack's, the cartoonist table at Churchill's, the wordlings about the Knickerbocker bar and the Forty-Second Street Country club.

There was that glittering wintry morning at the Metropole bar when a comedian of the day lurched blearily in from a ten-day joust with the jug, his clothes in spotty disorder. Failing asleep, Wilson Mizner hung this card around his neck: "The grandeur that is Grease, the glory that was Rum."

On another occasion a Broadwayite on a prolonged hurrah approached Mizner and flexing his muscles cried: "Feel, sucker! Sometimes I don't realize my own strength." Mizner replied: "I'll say you're a Sandow. Your breath alone would tilt windmills on a Dutch painting."

Also the actor who crashed every banquet. One night he drew his chair uninvited to the speaker's table and, when Willie Collier was introduced, began to heckle. Collier took it awhile. Then: "I have a surprise ladies and gentlemen. I take pleasure in presenting America's favorite pain in the neck."

In Jack's, one glowy midnight, came a prize-fighter, handsome in a vacuous way. As he passed a table some one commented on his superb stature and poise. Frank O'Malley, looking him over, chirped: "I've seen better heads on dollar umbrellas."

Another evening O'Malley came upon the late Joe Drum, James Montgomery Flagg and George Buchanon Fife. "Ah," he exclaimed, "the Spirit of '76." Drum was sailing one day on a French ship. "I choose to cross with the gallant chevaliers of France," he said, "where there is no hanky-panky about women and children first."

Unusual figures drifted to bars and chophouses in those haphazard days. Paper Collar Joe, the wide-hatted confidence man; Appetite Bill, who could devour a large bowl of popcorn at one sitting, and Grand Central Pete, whose boast was he was "so tough his spit bounced."

In Considine's, one dusk, somebody in a lunatic seizure suggested cracking the tedium by visiting Chinatown and "knocking the gong around." Just for a thrill. Paul Armstrong, the playwright, demurred: "No opium for me" he said. "I have noticed that once you start playing faro you soon find yourself dealing."

• • •

Jack's was the rowdiest spot shortly before dawn. It churned with lusty drinkers frequently in belligerent moods. Jack Dunstan, himself, often had to resort to strenuous measures. One bully "roared in" at a Fourth of July sunup, waving a smoking six-shooter. As he rushed toward a table menacingly, Dunstan stuck both thumbs in a pot of English mustard, clapped them to the annoyer's eyes, and he dropped his gun and crashed screaming into a pillar of the Sixth avenue el.

• • •

Another character, when Jack's lights flamed brightest, was a garrulous lawyer bursting into oratory at slight excuse. Harry Reichenbach once summed him up with: "Any time you ask that guy how he is, he'll climb, right up on a soap box and tell you."

But Broadway changes even in names. Rarely are there handles such as Slocum and Carter—names suggesting lace curtains, white-washed yard rocks and aspidistras. Instead are stuffed shirts with pomaded pomp and Argentine unction, bearing such names as Carlos and Ferenc and suggesting the lowest of all crime—blackmail.

Earl Carroll, George White and Florenz Ziegfeld, if they recognize each other in public, do so with a quick bird-like bow. Frequently they exchange bright colored rhetoric in the press. The other night they were trying not to notice one another at a party. All of a sudden everybody walked away, leaving them in an embarrassed huddle. Each grinned sheepishly. But no one broke the silence.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, March 1—Mrs. Mary Norton, representative from New Jersey, is a practical politician and she plays the game of politics astutely. She goes her way much like her male colleagues in the house. It is her proud boast that she is the first woman Democrat ever elected to congress and the first of her sex ever to hold down the chairmanship of a major standing committee.

As chairman of the committee on the District of Columbia, she is virtual mayor of Washington.

But the black-haired, keen-eyed lady from New Jersey has few illusions about politics. No one knows better than she that while the house as a whole may be a chivalrous body, when it comes to the business of passing bills, it's usually every man for himself.

Recently she took a good drubbing when she made her first appearance on the floor as chairman sponsoring a bill approved by her committee. It was a minor thing—authorizing the district George Washington bicentennial commission to incorporate in order to grant concessions to take care of those who visit the capital this year to celebrate Washington's 200th birthday anniversary. She didn't anticipate much opposition. When it cropped up, she got a little brusque. But she soon found that didn't work.

They could shout louder than she could. Hoping to jam it through she called for the previous question—necessitating the speaker to order a vote then and there.

The move spelled defeat for her. A booming chorus of "noes" left her a bit crestfallen.

But not for long. Gentlewoman Norton is not the kind to be beaten so easily.

It didn't take her long to figure out why she lost. It was because they outshouted her. Well, she could attend to that.

She called in her chief lieutenant, Palmisano, of Maryland, ranking Democrat of her committee, who has a voice of volume. She gave him the bill with instructions to go out on the floor and "shout" it through.

Then she sent word to Sol Bloom, director of the national bicentennial organization, to be present when Palmisano got an opening and be ready with an answer for every objection.

It worked. La Guardia, of New York, and Stafford, of Wisconsin, two of the ablest parliamentarians in the house, trained their guns on the bill. Even Snell, the Republican leader, got into it.

But Palmisano and Bloom shouted as loud as any of them, and soon reported victory back to G. H. Q.

Judy got to her feet purposefully.

"Let's have coffee upstairs," she suggested. "No, let's have it in our suite. Tom and I have some swell Cordon Rouge."

Hope giggled.

"Darling, I won't disgrace you, I promise," Hope said.

In the bar, Judy watched her, dividing her worry between Hope's heart-breaking hell-raising, and her new husband's impatient disgust with the entire proceedings.

The hilarity and general thawing of behavior that so often marks the last night on board ship, filled the ball-room with echoes of dozens of shrill voices.

The auction for the Sailors' Fund was to take place in the dining salon, and a table had been reserved.

Mrs. Carter caught at Hope's hand.

"I'm donating a shawl to be auctioned off," she announced.

"Sure I'll donate something too," agreed Hope with a muddled smile.

The bidding went on joyously. With Lillian Toff the loudest and most insistent. With Lillian Toff pronounced the owner....

Stupidly Hope watched. Every trace of blood leaving her cheeks, and every vestige of good savage anger, that she was ever capable of, rising in her heart as Lillian came out on the floor and gathered the cat into her arms; playing with it, holding Sassy up for more admiration, and bowing to the outburst of applause.

Then suddenly Hope came out of the daze. Something happened that caused Lillian's wide mouth grin to turn to a wild expression of pain and anger. From the shoulder downward on Lillian's plump white arm, Sassy had buried his claws and scratched one unmerciful stroke as an expression of his opinion!

With a thoroughly unprintable and wholly unladylike ejaculation, Lillian Toff, her arm bleeding, Sassy squirming in her grasp, turned and started out of the salon.

Without realizing that she had tipped her glass of champagne all over Judy's lovely white chiffon gown, Hope got to her feet. Silently, blindly, she fled away from the voices that called to her from her table following Lillian.

Lillian Toff turned half-way up a staircase and shouted something over her shoulder to Hope. Something that sounded like a dare.

Like a streak, Hope was after her. Up the stairs and toward the deck doorway where Lillian had swiftly disappeared. Pulling at the door, and bracing herself against the lunging wind that struck full force against her....

Even then, Hope could see. She could see Lillian at the railing lifting Sassy high up by the neck....

"Stop!" shrieked, Hope. "Stop, you——"

But her words were choked as she headed into the fine night wind out on the deck. Where, realizing what was happening, she leaned breathlessly up against the side of the ship, panting with relief.

For someone besides herself had seen Lillian. An arm had gone up, and a voice had spoken with a snarling sharpness. The voice of a man, smoking in the darkness as he leaned against one of the lifeboats.

Swiftly Sassy had been drawn back. Wrenched from Lillian's startled grasp, and was held now by that man who was shouting through the wind—shouting angry, unspeakable things at Lillian....

"Hickey!" cried Hope with a glad rush forward. "Hickey darling!"

Her arms went out, hugging him close, as she flung herself on him, her head buried in his shoulder.

She heard Hickey's voice, and felt his arm around her. Let herself be guided up the sea-damp deck-stairs, and finally drawn into the grateful warmth of an upper passage-way. Before she had caught her breath she found herself in the sitting-room of Hickey's suite.

He let her sit down and cry it out while he fixed himself a whisky and soda, and settled himself in a chair opposite her.

"What must you think of me?" she repeated at last as she gazed miserably over at him.

"Well, child," he said at length. "I think you're a terrible fool. But I think—we've all been fools."

"Oh, Hickey, I've wanted so often to talk to you!"

"God, if you only had, Hope! I didn't know what to think of you, really until tonight. Your friend, Mrs. Post, dug me up just a few hours ago, and told me all about things. Even then I couldn't quite believe it—that you cared that much. Truly cared for my boy—after all—well—that's happened."

"Hickey!" Red-eyed, Hope leaned forward in her chair. "I care so much that I would want Dickey even if it was only for my money. I love him so much that I——"

"What do you mean—money?"

"Papa said——"

She stopped short at Hickey's expression.

"Your father told you it was your money that my boy wanted? Is that it? Did he tell you how he hurt the kid? How he struck him down? Did he tell you that?"

"Hurt him?"

"He didn't tell you! Struck him down, he did, with a billiard cue, and God knows what kept me from letting my dog on him. He didn't tell you then, that Dickey was laid up for six weeks—"

"Is that the scar on Dickey's face now?"

"Yes, that's the scar! Given him the night after your wedding when Dickey and I went to see your father, and we quarreled down in your billiard room——"

"Oh, Hickey!" Hope covered her eyes with the back of one hand. "Dad wouldn't—he wouldn't do it to me. He wouldn't——"

"Well, he did!"

"He told me Dickey or you never came near him! That you were perfectly willing to have it annulled——"

"Did he ever tell you that I went up to the White Plains court and entered a protest against that annulment? Appeared just as a matter of form because Dickey wanted me to so badly?"

"I wrote that note to Dickey—about never wanting to see him again because he never answered any of my letters. Hickey, did he ever get any of my letters?"

"Not a word! On my Bible oath, Hope. And that letter you did send him gave me the worst year of my life!

"Go to him now—go find him, Hope, for the love of God. I can no longer do anything or mean anything to him."

"You mean" Hope jumped to her feet "he still cares for me?"

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow's Urgent Request Adds to Mystery.

IT seemed to me that the echoes of Lillian's sardonically amused voice had not died away before Lee Chow appeared at the nursery door.

"Mrs. Underwood was kind enough to promise me that you would honor me with a short interview," he said, with a touch of Oriental extravagance in his speech.

"Sit down," I said hospitably. "I shall be very glad to help you in any way I can."

He seated himself and went to the point promptly.

"I want to find out all I can about this lock box, the possession of which has caused so much trouble for you," he said. "Will you please tell me everything you can about it?"

"I can do that very quickly," I said. "You know, of course, that Mrs. Underwood was married before, and that Marion is the child of her first husband, Tom Morton?"

He inclined his head gravely and I went on.

The Box's Beginning

"He was a thorough-paced scoundrel, but he tried to atone a little before he died. Not with property, however. He was supposed to have left none. His old mother, even, was left penniless, and Lillian took care of her until the poor old woman died. This, of course, was after her marriage to Mr. Underwood, and the unfortunate circumstances that separated them for so long."

Lee Chow nodded his understanding of that phase of my story and I hurried on.

"When Marion first went away to school, she brought to me an old-fashioned lock box that her grandmother had given to her. She showed me that beneath the apparent bottom there was a secret compartment in which there were three envelopes marked not to be opened until the child came of age. She had told Marion that she must not let anyone, especially her mother, see the box.

"Marion had kept it hidden through the years, but she did not dare leave it in her room, or take it with her to the school. At that time she did not like her stepfather, so she brought the box to me for safe keeping. Not very long after there began a series of desperate attempts to get hold of the box. You probably know all about them."

Recalling the Envelopes

"Yes, I have been told about them. Your father put the box in the bank for safe keeping, did he not?"

"Yes. It is there now."

"Those envelopes, when you saw them, had not been opened?"

"Oh, no."

"Did you have them in your hands?"

"At the time my father put the box in the bank, yes."

"What did you notice about them?"

"That they contained papers that rustled; also small, hard, knotty objects."

"Ah!" The exclamation was curiously like a prayer. Then he was silent for a little.

"How long before this child becomes of age?" he asked at last.

"About two months."

"Then," he decided, "I must wait the appointed time. It is not a good thing to flout the wishes of the dead. But—would the young girl be willing that I should take those envelopes in my hands, as you and your father did, and run my fingers over the outside of them?"

Permission To Be Sought

He put up his hand as I was about to answer, and his black eyes were so narrowed that I knew what was meant by the old simile of "pin points."

"Tell her I would not ask this if it were not necessary that I should be able to determine something I suspect about the contents of those envelopes; and upon that suspicion depends something so important that I cannot find words to explain how vital it is."

"She may wish to be present while you inspect the box," I said.

"She must be," he said quickly. "Otherwise I can not touch it."

I looked at my wrist watch and rose abruptly.

"If you wish to get that box from the bank this afternoon and put it back again before closing hours, you will have to hurry," I said.

He had risen with me and now stood smiling at me gravely.

"I wish to hurry, but not on account of the bank," he said. "Your father has what you call over here 'a pull.' The president himself will remain over to receive the box. But I should like to get the young girl's permission as soon as I can."

A figure flew past the door, and a second or two later Marion's door slammed emphatically. I was sure it was Lillian's young daughter whom I had seen, and I turned to Lee Chow abruptly.

"Wait here, please," I said. "I think I can find out what you wish to know at once." Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Purdue, Wildcats To Decide Big Ten Title Saturday

BOILERMAKERS BEAT ILLINOIS TEAM TO ASSURE TITLE SHOT

Purple Wallops Ohio State To Stay in Midst of Conflict.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, March 1—There still was life in the Western conference basketball title struggle today.

Purdue and Northwestern, the remaining contenders, both battered aside opposition last night, leaving the big blowoff for next Saturday night when they meet at Evanston.

Purdue racked up its ninth triumph last night, trouncing Illinois 34 to 19, at Lafayette, while the Wildcats defeated Ohio State, 26 to 19, at Columbus. Purdue's victory also squared up for its only defeat of the conference season, administered by the Illini back in January.

Purdue was paced to victory by brilliant Johnny Wooden, who scored 13 points to lift his season total to 112 for 10 games. Michigan walloped Wisconsin 33 to 13.

Iowa and Chicago staged the roughest contest of the season. The Hawkeyes got the decision, 46 to 28, and were charged with 23 personal fouls. The Maroons were assessed 19 times.

If Purdue defeats Northwestern Saturday night, the championship will go to Lafayette for its second visit in three years. If Northwestern is victorious, the Wildcats can do no worse than share the title with the Boilermakers.

Edward Stewart, 98-year-old Civil war veteran of Cooleemee, N. C., is the oldest person in the United States licensed to hunt, according to records of the Izaak Walton league.

COACHES, OFFICIALS NAME RURAL FIVES

East Side Players Predominate on Honorary Rural Basketball Quintets This Season.

Coaches and officials of the Marion county basketball league have cooperated this season in naming for The Star the annual all-county court squads of both the boys' and girls' divisions. The teams listed here were picked on the basis of votes cast by the officials and coaches. A first team selection gained two votes for a player and a second team post a single vote.

A glance at the selections of the boys' teams reveals that players from the Eastern side of the county are holding down a majority of the positions. Of the five men on the first team, only one hails from a West side quintet. On the second team, two of the five boys are from West side schools while three do their court work for East side teams.

Caledonia's championship boys' team placed two on the first team, and one of them, Walter Wait is named captain Wait is probably the best ball player produced in Marion county for several years. He is the ideal of any coach, an excellent leader and a smart player. He plays any position on the team and does a good job at all of them.

The other three first team posts are divided among Morral of the West side and Kirkpatrick and Waldo of the East half.

Selecting the first girls' team presented fewer difficulties than is usually the case. There are about a half dozen players in the county who were easily the class of the league. Naming the second six is a more difficult problem. A wide variance of opinion is noted in the coaches and officials' selection.

Willcox of Claridon, Shults of Waldo, Walshburn of Morral and Kraner of Claridon were almost unanimous choices for posts on the first girls' team.

LEONARD RETURNS TO FORMER HANGOUT TO SCORE RING VICTORY

Aging Legs of Veteran Totter, but He Batters Way to Decision.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, March 1—Down the splintery aisle of St. Nicholas Arena, where a dollar buys a reserved seat, stalked an old familiar figure—Benny Leonard, undefeated lightweight champion of the world.

It was "Benneh," coming back to seek the glory he knew more than 10 years ago.

His comeback started last summer, but last night the first genuine test. It was against Bill McMahon.

The bell rang and Benny sidled out, thick about the body but not fat, for all the world like the old Leonard except for the front of his head, where the hair was carefully combed to disguise its thinness.

McMahon rushed in, wild swinging youth, and up went both of Benny's arms, catching the punches. They danced in the open, Benny lightly posed on his toes, and left jabs spattered all over the young Irishman's features.

So it went with slight variations, through 10 rounds.

But it was a shaky Leonard in spots, a Leonard that tired easily But even so, Benny won eight of the 10 rounds, though several were close.

He weighed 151¾ pounds, far above the 133 he used to make for his lightweight title defenses.

Although there were no knockdowns, Benny was on the floor twice, once in a manner astonishing to the faithful who knew him in other days In the sixth round Benny missed McMahon's jaw completely, fell face down on the floor.

Again in the ninth he slipped on a wet spot in his own corner and nearly fell out of the ring.

Referee Gunboat Smith voted the match a draw, but the Judges gave Benny the award.

Two rings were set up in the Cleveland public auditorium and the elimination contests will be held two at a time. Each bout will be limited to three rounds. The semi finals will be fought next Monday night, and the finals the night following.

Though under contract with the Yankees he expects to play again this year with the Newark club of the International league. Bob plays first base.

KRUSKAMP LOSES TO FATHER LUMPKIN IN SHOVEL MAT BATTLE

Ohio State Star Downed After Scissors Hold Cracks a Rib.

Those powerful legs that carried Father Lumpkin to many a touchdown on the football field gave him a well-earned victory over Hardy Kruskamp in last night's main-go wrestling match at the Steam Shovel gym.

Lumpkin cracked one of Kruskamp's ribs in the first fall when he put too much pressure on a body scissors. Kruskamp, fighting off the intense pain, managed to win the first fall when he caught Lumpkin with a deadly crab. The fall lasted 34 minutes.

Kruskamp was game and reported for the second fall. He attempted to finish it in double quick time but Lumpkin was just a bit too clever. Another body scissors gave Lumpkin the fall in 7 30. Kruskamp was unable to appear for the final fall.

Sailor Arnold put up a great wrestling exhibition to win the referee's decision over Martin Zikhoff, the massive Austrian. It took Arnold 33 minutes to pin Zikhoff after countering an arm lock with a head scissors. Neither man was able to get a fall in the remaining minutes of wrestling. Arnold is one of the best heavyweights to wrestle here.

Larry Stroub of Columbus was just too good for Bill Miller in the preliminary bout. Stroub pinned his man in 14:30 with a back slam countering a full nelson.

Two of the 11-year-old Golden Ruled club boys gave a nice 10-minute demonstration. Steve Stephens defeated Buck Elliott in nine minutes with a body press and arm lock. Both the boys showed plenty of promise.

PUBLIC STAYS OUT OF MART

Professional Activity Shows Little Effect on Level of Prices.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 1—Professional manipulators looked in vain for a lead with the advent of March in the stock market today.

Public participation was almost lacking and floor traders were left largely to their own devices, which were of course without any effect upon prices. A few issues were influenced by special developments, but the list showed little change.

Johns Manville dropped three points on news of the dividend and reported earnings of only eight cents a share for 1931. Bendix Aviation was cut 15 points, as the quarterly payment was cut to 15 cents from 75 cents. The alcohol stocks reflected speculative activity on reports that production would be under more effective control of the American Commercial Alcohol. National Distillers and U. S. Industrial Alcohol rose about a point each. Auburn shot up six points in short covering, then lost much of its gain. Several of the pivotal industrials ranged fractionally higher.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, March 2

ALTHOUGH a very lively day may be looked for, according to the lunar aspects holding sway, yet there may be an angle of commotion not entirely agreeable. A sudden change or journey may have its anxieties and complications. Also there may be a subtle influence at work, making for underhand and sinister attack, bearing on new undertakings or propositions, in which be cautious. But, nevertheless, employment may unfold some advantages and there may be favors or recognition from those in authority.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of unforeseen change, removal or journey, and these may present some anxieties or perplexities. But things will be lively and stirring and there may be advancement or recognition from employers or those in authority. A child born on this day should be versatile, clever, scientifically inclined and may find favor with its employers despite a tendency to restlessness and change and being subject to subtle opposition.

GRAIN PRICES FORCED DOWN

Values Average Lower, Influenced by Heavy Contract Deliveries.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 1 — Grain prices averaged lower early today, influenced by heavy deliveries of March wheat contracts and by expected bearish estimates of domestic reserve stocks on farms. There were also reports that although a cold wave was sweeping Europe, crops abroad were mostly protected by snow. Starting at ⅛@⅜ decline, Chicago wheat futures afterward held near the initial figures. Corn opened unchanged to ⅜ off and subsequently was steady.

The average of the unofficial estimates of farm reserve stocks of wheat was fully as bearish as had been looked for, 179,000,000 bushels, compared with 160,000,000 reported a year ago. This condition of winter wheat was figured at 81.5 per cent against 79.4 in December and 87.5 on March 1 last year. Wheat in country mills and elevators was estimated as 79,000,000 bushels, and the amount fed to livestock up to March 1, was put at 137,000,000 bushels as against 105,000,000 the year previous.

Wheat values continued to sag after the crop experts figures were issued, and the market soon went about 1 cent under yesterday's finish. Corn, however, developed relative firmness, although the average estimate of stocks of corn on farms was 1,070,000,000 bushels, compared with 709,000,000 bushels reported a year ago. Apparently, corn traders who were short of the market took advantage of the favorable opportunity to buy. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were neglected.

Theater News and Reviews

Clark Gable loses none of his attraction for feminine theatergoers as the young minister in "Polly of the Circus" which opened at the Palace yesterday for a three day run. As the unsophisticated small-town minister who falls in love with a circus performer, Gable sacrifices none of his boyish appeal.

Marion Davies, who carries the title role, is equally good as the circus performer. Indignant because of an ordinance in the small town prohibiting the exhibition of pictures of women in tights has resulted in each of the bill boards bearing her picture of being dressed in various articles of feminine underwear of various periods, Polly goes in a rage to the home of the minister to protest.

Just as she is about to make a sensational trapeze catch at the performance that night someone in the audience yells loudly and she misses her catch and falls. She is taken to the home of the young minister. With their marriage, he loses his church and is unable to get another. The dramatic climax of the picture comes when the bishop tells them neither divorce or separation will restore the minister to his former standing. Polly returns to the circus and plans an unusually dangerous trapeze act without a net, obviously with the intention of having another fall. She is saved from the sacrifice, however, by the arrival of the bishop who has experienced a change of heart.

An Andy Clyde comedy, a Grantland Rice Sport Lite and a news reel are also on the program.

CRAWFORD-GABLE AT STATE THREE DAYS

"Possessed" is a dramatic story of a factory girl who takes the easiest road to Park avenue in New York City and finds that after all, there's more to life and happiness than wealth. The picture is based on the stage play, "The Mirage."

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough due to a cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

COLUMBUS VISITORS SING AT SERVICES

Special Music Is Feature of Revival at Calvary Evangelical Church.

Mrs. Edna Beougher Hughes preached last night at Calvary Evangelical church on the subject of "Jesus Is Passing By" and at the close of the services, 10 responded to the altar call. Duets were sung by Columbus visitors and two women of the church.

The evangelist said in part as follows:

"In spite of coldness, atheism and modernism, Jesus is passing by. There is coming a day when He will not pass by you. They say the day of miracles is passed. The greatest miracle of all is when the Holy Spirit applies the blood and we are saved.

"If you are doing something in the church because you say it is your duty, then do not do it, because you will not get blessings out of it. If you love God you do not go to church or prayer meeting because you think it your duty, but because you love to do so.

"You want to be careful when a soul is convicted of his sin and is crying out to God lest you say or do something to hinder him."
